AND FINALLY...

We ask God to remember all those who are struggling– either through illness, anxiety or despair. Help them to take stock of the bravery of our ancestors who were victorious in Europe, so long ago. We too, will be celebrating as a nation again soon. God our Father Hear our prayer

Well done Ciaran! A section of the start...

Briskly, Alfie was walking to the local shops to buy some bread for his mom; she wasn't feeling well so he offered to do a bit of shopping to save her having to go out, although he had a bit of a cold himself. This was when he came across an uninhabited building, the windows were boarded up with wood and there were no gaps in the door to peek through. It looked like it may have been a shop previously with a flat above. He knew he shouldn't but his curiosity got the better of him and he thought, "what harm could it do to have a little peek inside?" Maybe even spend some time in there; after all, he thought, "I have nowhere to be." Somehow forgetting about his mom he waited until no one was around and slowly pushed open the door to something much different to the real world, or was it?

Who ever suggested that learning could not be great fun?

IN SCHOOL

Thanks to the great posse of timetabled staff, keeping the school ticking. These range from the front of office SLT, being ready to listen and "quick fix", to the remote office staff really keeping the SMA cogs turning, supporting new technology and coaching and developing others to do so also.

They include our pastoral support staff, who are working on a 2 week rota to ensure that those children in school, access their learning. They also include the posse of differing staff who have been in regular contact with pupils, and staff who continue to liaise effectively with outside agencies as needed.

Thanks to staff really aiming to make learning the best it can be, at home– varied, fun, accessible and progressive. It is not school, but hopefully learning is still moving forward.

VICTORY IN EUROPE 75 YRS

We would really love to see how you are celebrating VE Day. Any tea parties, singing, fun or laughter– please let us know. It is another momentous historical day that we cannot leave unmarked.

There are 3 lovely BBC bitesize VE Day video clip links on the Home Learning Pages of the website. It might occupy children's minds a little. I hope they help to share the significance of the day, a little for the children.

Thanks also to the cooks who provide some lovely food and a ready smile. And finally, thanks to the cleaners, Sue and Helen, supported by Andy of course, who keep the building safe and spotless.
